Conference type: international student conference

CONTEMPORARY CHALLENGES IN EDUCATION – DIDACTIC ASPECTS

Educational philosophy and the postmodern orientation, which are contained in the contemporary educational theory and emancipatory didactics, involve strategies which go beyond understanding and remembering content. These diverse strategies stress self-organized learning, appropriateness, problem solving, posing new questions, creative approaches to content analysis, discussion of open questions and other things which fit into the idea of quality learning and the building of knowledge, or in other words which fits into the emancipatory function of learning.

The goal of the conference is to enrich and innovate didactic strategies of students, whose future calling will be connected to the area of education. This includes students – future preschool teachers, lower grade elementary school teachers and subject elementary\high school teachers. Through mentorship with their professors, the students will have the opportunity to create papers in which they will present original didactic and methodological solutions which can be used in practical work with children and the youth. Furthermore, the conference significance is reflected in the exchange of experiences and the students' practical examples, which gives impulse to further enrichment of the didactic practice.

Topics

- Didactic strategies and methods for encouraging creativity – theoretical and practical aspects
- Enriching the didactic practice with methodological solutions in the work with preschool children
- Enriching the didactic practice with methodological solutions in lower grades of elementary school
- Enriching the didactic practice with methodological solutions in subject teaching
- Didactic strategies in the digital era – the possibilities of learning and teaching via multimedia tools

Participants should apply for the conference by 20. October 2017.

Participants of the international conference may submit only one paper (author, co-author). The topic registration needs to be done along with a paper summary (up to 1000 characters) and key words, in the mother tongue and the English language. The summary should be written in the B5 format, font Times New Roman, font size 10 pt, line spacing Single, standard Windows margins.
